Qualcomm Class Action

This is not an official Court Notice.

Information contained in this Summary is subject to change. There is no monetary settlement at this time.

If you or your business purchased, paid and/or provided reimbursement for some or all of the price of UMTS, CDMA and/or LTE cellular phones on or after February 11, 2011, an antitrust class action lawsuit alleging price fixing may affect you.

Eligible Class Members: If certified, eligible Class Members are all persons and entities (excluding all federal and state government entities) in the United States who or which, from February 11, 2011 to the present, purchased, paid for and/or provided reimbursement for some or all of the purchase price for all UMTS (Universal Mobile Telecommunications System), CDMA (Code Division Multiple Access which includes CDMAone and cdma2000) and/or LTE cellular phones (“Relevant Cellular Phones”) for end use and not for resale. Members of the class include consumers who received cellular phones as part of the purchase of a wireless network services contract from a wireless operator such as Verizon, AT&T, T-Mobile, or Sprint.

Definition: “Relevant Cellular Phones” are phones with CDMA and LTE technologies, and include, but are not limited to, phones manufactured and sold by companies such as Apple, Samsung, LG, Motorola, and ZTE.

Case History: In early 2016, numerous class action lawsuits were filed claiming Qualcomm violated state and federal antitrust laws, harmed competition and caused consumers to overpay for cellular phones. It is impossible to predict the outcome, but money may become available to Eligible Class Members if the class is certified and a settlement is reached with Qualcomm in the future.

If a monetary settlement is obtained, information about it will be available from Class Counsel.
